The World on the Maine Count

New York, Dec 16 —The World has the following editorial Governor Garcelon and his advisers have made a [illegible] political and not less serious moral mistake They have nullified the will of the people of Maine as [illegible] at the last election on account of clerical errors and oversights These errors and oversights were committed not by electors, but by local canvassers The votes were [illegible] thrown out on account of informality in the manner in which they were returned There is no pretense that this informality [illegible] such as to leave the intention of voters [illegible] The tenor of all statutes, judicial decisions and treatises which deal with elections is, that every presumption should be [illegible] in favor of giving effect to the real intention of voters The canvassers in Maine [illegible] unquestionably nullified the real intention of voters. There is no dodging that fact [illegible] with fair minded people that fact will be [illegible] of any controversy that may be [illegible] It is plain that defeated legislators [illegible] have thus been counted in ought [illegible] to serve, and leave the organization [illegible] legislature to the republicans who were [illegible] to it. Only in that way can they [illegible] the democratic greenback party [illegible] the share of disgrace which already [illegible] to the republican party of the nation [illegible] republicans should be permitted to enjoy [illegible] monopoly of the practices of Madison Wells [illegible] his leagues if democrats are to keep [illegible] of the position which John Sherman [illegible] the two Chandlers and Stough on [illegible] to them

Slavery in Tennessee

[illegible], Dec 13 —Judge E S Hammond [illegible] United States Circuit Court to-day had [illegible] case before him. J C Birmingham [illegible] county Tennessee, has been [illegible] for holding two colored girls in slavery [illegible] appears Birmingham refused to recognize the abolition of slavery and ever [illegible] war has claimed to own the girls [illegible] he owned their mother The conduct of Birmingham excited the indignation of [illegible] neighbors and at their instigation the [illegible] States grand jury recently found an [illegible] against him Judge Hammond [illegible] the indictment, holding that the [illegible] law which says that every person [illegible] or carries away any other person [illegible] intent that such other person be sold [illegible] involuntary servitude or be held as a [illegible] be punished by fine or imprisonment [illegible] not apply to any one holding [illegible] pretending to hold in slavery in this [illegible] because slavery having been abolished [illegible] could be no slavery here and [illegible] no one could be held as a slave [illegible] the Judge said, is an offence not provided for by the act of Congress and not punishable by indictment in the federal courts [illegible] was discharged

Cannon on Mormon Affairs.

[illegible], Dec 16 —Last night, in a [illegible] with a Tribune correspondent [illegible] anti-polygamy laws and bills on [illegible] introduced in the house yester[illegible] Willets, Delegate Cannon of Utah [illegible] does not believe that those laws can [illegible] made effective He declares that the [illegible] disfranchise Mormons is born of the [illegible] the impecunious in Utah that [illegible] unable to control the offices and [illegible] taxes of Utah if a scheme of dis[illegible] is carried out. Cannon denies [illegible] recently been married to a fifth [illegible] He also says that it would be contrary [illegible] precedent for the house of representatives [illegible] take any action toward expelling [illegible] He has offended against the law he [illegible] tried by the law, and not by congress.

Sharon's Back Pay.

[illegible], Dec 14.—Secretary Burch has [illegible] that he must obey the statute [illegible] the Nevada Senator the pay for [illegible] session, during which he was away [illegible] Washington. The statute provides that [illegible] withheld for every day's absence [illegible] absentee has been away from his [illegible] because of his own sickness or the [illegible] sickness of his family

The Lakeview Herald says that Goose lake is frozen over and skating parties are numerous The ice on the slough is reported strong enough to bear up a team and load

The Southern Oregon papers continue [illegible] filled with accounts of the recent floods Nearly every village reports more or less damage bridges fences, etc washed out

Roseburg Star Notwithstanding the miserable condition of the roads several teams from Jackson and Josephine counties have been loaded during the past week with freight for the merchants of that section

A Gardiner correspondent says The [illegible] son [illegible] this [illegible] a few days last week but closed down again It is rumored that the lumber combination in San Francisco pays Simpson & Co a stipulated sum per month to keep their mill idle Hinsdale & Co [illegible] I saw all the logs Simpson has on hands at this time

Some time since the Lafayette Courier published a challenge to pit the Fenton family of Yamhill against any family in the state in base ballists The Roseburg Star has accepted the challenge and names the Messrs [illegible] of Jacksonville The preliminaries are being arranged and a great deal of talk can be expected

Says the Star speaking of the recent loss on the lower Umpqua The loggers and mill men of Gardiner suffered considerably by the recent freshet John Corven s boom on Smith river gave away about 4 P M on the 31 [illegible] taking a large number of logs adrift The whole number of logs lost is estimated at from [illegible] to four million feet Wm Reid lost about 1 000 000 feet, and Murphy as many or more Emerson & Reid are heavy losers Simpson s loss is greater than that of Hinsdale & Co though both firms suffer heavily A correspondent informs us that the losses will reach between $10 000 and $12 000

Skagit gold is worth $17 per ounce

The San Juan oats command a higher price in the San Francisco market than any other class of oats

The Seattle Post says Already the effects of the Skagit river gold excitement are beginning to be felt During the past few days a number of old miners from Boise City and various parts of eastern Oregon have arrived in Seattle bound for the Skagit Many of them will go through to the mines this winter while others will wait for spring

THE LATE GEN KEARNEY

VANCOUVER BARRACKS, Dec 19 1879

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

I promised to give you the true version of the Kearney story Many a good tale is injured by corrections and it will doubtless be the case with this one yet this is an age when men are not satisfied with good tales They want facts above below and around them preferring the accuracy of a retentive memory to the most brilliant flight of a daring imagination

The celebrated battle of Fair Oaks called by the Confederates Seven Pines, was fought on the evening of the last day of May and the first day of June 1862. I went into action quite early in the morning of the second day of the battle was twice wounded in the right arm The second wound was a severe one and caused me to leave the field about half past ten in the day I went to the field hospital where hundreds of others were already congregated and toward evening had the wounded arm amputated General Kearney who was engaged not far from my position, and with whom I had often been in juxtaposition so that we exchanged visits, doubtless heard of my fortune that evening The next day I set out on foot for the depot at Fair Oaks and met General Kearney at the railroad, on horseback who quietly dismounted and extended his hand to me It was the right hand of course for he had buried the left in Mexico I was in good spirits as cheerful as usual and perhaps striving not to be depressed by the pity [illegible] so I said in a joking manner as my left hand clasped his right In one thing we can do general—we can buy our gloves together

Sure enough he said and then went on to say that I must not mind the loss He declared among other consoling things that the ladies never [illegible] the lack of an arm to the disadvantage of a man

Gen Phil Kearney was habitually most genial and courteous in his deportment and always treated me with marked attention and respect so that the various stories from that time of his roughness [illegible] words respecting prayer and the like have no place He was quick tempered and exceedingly sensitive

One night when his staff had failed to put his troop [illegible] to position [illegible] him along the [illegible] Alexandria Railroad I saw him in a great pa[illegible] He was then in manner simply terrific I saw him again angry after the battle of Williamsburg He had made an advance with his [illegible] [illegible] enterprise and thought that [illegible] Clellan should have given him the [illegible] of the [illegible] tory but was another [illegible] done wonders [illegible] reward Then you should have seen Phil Kearney [illegible] exhibition vehement anger and bitter [illegible] It is idle to [illegible] more to depict [illegible] loss of [illegible] were wont to [illegible] in those times from want [illegible] steady [illegible] Phil Kearney [illegible] judgment [illegible] cavalry leader He [illegible] of the old [illegible] infantry and [illegible] other chafing [illegible] men such as gave [illegible] study [illegible]

[illegible] OREGON SCHOOL FUND PROPERTY

[illegible] was [illegible] interest [illegible] decree [illegible] she [illegible] sale [illegible] chaser for $2600 gold coin [illegible] the property [illegible] 13

On or about [illegible] April [illegible] was addressed to the [illegible] Portland requesting information as to [illegible] block [illegible] was for sale [illegible] at what price [illegible] following reply was received [illegible]

OFFICE OF BOARD STATE LAND COMMISSIONERS
SALEM OREGON April [illegible]

[illegible]—DEAR SIR Lot 6 of block [illegible] the city of Portland belonging to the common school fund is not for sale but the board is not inclined to [illegible] but will have it properly [illegible] [illegible] when I can inform you [illegible]

F P McDERMA[illegible]
Clerk of Board

After some delay the inquirer was again informed verbally by [illegible] that the property would be appraised [illegible] be informed of the value that might be fixed upon it Weeks later [illegible] the inquirer (who had [illegible] desire to purchase the property [illegible] be [illegible] at a reasonable figure) was [illegible] furnished with [illegible] A [illegible] on the 20 of November last a letter was addressed by the same person to [illegible] the numbers of the blocks in question [illegible] price or appraised value of [illegible] block 1[illegible]7 To this letter no answer was received nor any information obtained [illegible] the subject until some ten or twelve days subsequently when the announcement was made verbally by a member of the board to the inquirer that his letter was not answered for the reason that it was misplaced but the board had sold the property

Many of our citizens who are familiar with the location and value of the property referred to were somewhat surprised on reading the following announcement published in the daily papers Dec 13th in the regular report of real estate transactions viz

State of Oregon to Van B DeLashmutt Dec 9 [illegible] feet lot 8 and N 20 feet of E 80 feet lot [illegible] blk 167 and lot 6 blk 127, all in city—$1950

Van B DeLashmutt and wife to Richard Williams, Dec 11 1879 and 1-2 of E 30 feet of 8 and N 20 feet of E 80 feet lot 7 blk 167 city—$[illegible]00

The lot 30x70 feet is situated in the vicinity of the county court house on the South side of Madison street between Fifth and Sixth and has thereon a small dwelling renting for $10 per month while the other 50x100 feet lot is located on Second street between Clay and Market—opposite the Mechanics Pavilion and upon which is a dwelling yielding an income of $16 per month rent—thus aggregating one per cent per month on $2600 —the cost of the property to the state

Since the [illegible] acquired title to this property there has been a very material appreciation in value of real estate in this city and especially so in the localities in which the pieces are situated so that now a candid and fair estimate of the present market value of the property would place the former price at not less than $1000 and the latter at $2500 each The state than has received $1900 for what cost it $2600 and what is worth in the market $3500 —thus sustaining a loss of $900 on cost or $1600 on present value, or to make the still more liberal and extremely low estimate of $3000 for present value a loss of $1100 to the school fund has resulted from the sale of property which was paying the state one per cent per month on cost

The necessity of realizing $1900 to again place at interest at ten per cent per annum and sacrificing $300 of the former principal that was yielding twelve per cent may not be quite apparent to the average citizen

The instance above related of the efforts of one person to obtain from the board information relative to the property with a view of purchasing the same, does not stand alone or it is equally true that a like effort was made by others of our citizens within the past few months and too with the same unsatisfactory result as in the case particularly referred to—and in one instance a virtual offer of $3000 was made for the lot 6 block 12[illegible] as long ago as last April or May and before the recent advance in the value of real property in this city

The Standard in its defense of the board, makes the following statement to wit

A gentleman connected with the board informs us that he will redeem the property from the present purchaser if any one will give an advance sufficient to justify it and sell it to such party

An opportunity is here afforded to carry into effect this proposition and thus save $900 to that fund, which should be held sacred by every good citizen even though he may not be [illegible] the restraint of an official oath Although the applicant was originally desirous of purchasing but one of the two pieces of property he now announces his readiness to carry out on his part the following proposition viz If the gentleman connected with the board will communicate to the address of H E W care of P O box [illegible] Portland the information that he will redeem for the state the property at the price it was sold at and that the board will execute a conveyance of the same property to the applicant for the consideration of $2[illegible]00 gold coin the applicant will at once deposit ten per cent of the purchase money as an earnest that he will pay the balance and take the property as soon as the title can be examined and the deed ready for delivery In case the title shall be found [illegible] except [illegible] the amount deposited to be forfeited to the school fund if the remainder of the purchase price be not paid by the time that may be designated and as an [illegible] of [illegible]

[illegible] Portland [illegible] streets [illegible] its formula of street work [illegible] which presents this anomaly which must have certainly escaped the notice of [illegible] business [illegible] east of Fourth [illegible] those west [illegible] through the blocks are of the same [illegible] throughout the city that and though the property value per front foot [illegible] Fourth to the river is from [illegible] [illegible] Fourth in the [illegible] of the city in that direction under the [illegible] macadam street ordinance all property [illegible] assessed for the improvement $1[illegible] [illegible] while property on the east side of Fourth [illegible] assessed [illegible] to only [illegible] feet per [illegible] the difference in property value [illegible] up to more than [illegible] thousand per cent [illegible] west [illegible] block having to pay for about thirty feet [illegible] of street work than those between Fourth street and the river front

Under the late street ordinance streets macadamized in accordance with the provisions of [illegible] 13 and 14 costs per block east of Fourth $21[illegible] and west $26[illegible] Under the new ordinance macadam will approximately cost $440 [illegible] and $48[illegible] The latter sum under the new ordinance will be impartially assessed upon all blocks east of Fourth to the outer limit of the city—the same amount of material and work being required out there as on Front or First streets

Now it is apparent that the greatest good to the greatest number requires a modification of this new macadam formula before the next street work season commences The present business limits of the city are mainly comprised west of Fourth between Harrison and G streets, and property values in these bounds can afford to improve streets in accordance with the new macadam ordinance but even this improvement can be amended to the future advantage of property owners as suggested hereinafter

As there are about forty miles of streets lying west of Fourth to which is not likely to extend for years other than for residence purposes where property is rated comparatively low as contrasted east of Fourth and requires less costly street improvements for local convenience it would be politic to re-enact sections 13 and 14 of the old ordinance for the improvement of all streets west of Fourth and north and south of [illegible] west side limits mentioned The cost would be [illegible] ratio with the present value of outside property and the lighter macadam would be impacted to a proper foundation for any class of improvement that may be decided for in the future and trade extension require more substantial street work

And further in respect of street work west of Fourth according to the new ordinance it would be improved street engineering to reduce the macadam rather four inches below grade than above as called for by the new ordinance—[illegible] events not above grade, for the following reasons The proposed macadam four inches above grade, cannot be worn or settled enough to allow a better class of improvement to follow and keep to grade without removing the center, [illegible] which ought to be left undisturbed as a permanent foundation for all future repairs and improvements The northerly portions of Front and First streets may in due time decide upon Belgian block improvement, and when that time arrives if the new style macadam is settled to the proper limit below grade a foundation will be ready for block pavement of the most desired character but as at present prepared the macadam will be unfitted for that purpose

An the [illegible] enters into the effect of this new street macadam ordinance that may or may not receive attention hereafter The ordinance virtually changes the established grade of the city to the extent of four inches which has not been done in the manner defined by the city charter and we do not suppose was intended to be a change of grade but if a dissatisfied property owner should refuse to pay his street assessment on that plea and go into the courts the city would be at some expense with a risk to its street improvement incident to the uncertainties of law

Now in peroration admitting the fact that all our streets require some foundation before receiving a costly improvement and that macadam appears to be the cheapest and best it is not good policy to establish a new and expensive class of macadam nearly doubling the cost of the old when it seems to be proven that the old is competent to carry the work of the streets as well as remain a solid foundation for the future Besides that the present street work as devised under all plans no matter what the cost, will not satisfy the demand as a finished street and the cheaper the [illegible] which makes a passable street and is permanently ready as a foundation for any devised pavement is the best Admitting the some of our front streets now demand the paveme[illegible] improvement proposed by the new ordinance [illegible] good policy to extend the same class of expensive work over all the [illegible]

There is another view of this new macadam question that enters more [illegible] the humanitarian [illegible] but still [illegible] class [illegible] streets many of whom [illegible] some of [illegible] purchase [illegible] the same [illegible] Front and First streets [illegible] [illegible] improvements [illegible] while on the other hand [illegible] macadam might be gradually extended through out the forty miles of improved streets with the approbation of all concerned

SCHOOL FUND PROPERTY

We give place in another column under the above caption to the record of a transaction by the board of land commissioners for Oregon which has been the subject of much comment in some circles for a few days past. Dark hints were thrown out by the Standard at one time, in regard to a matter which was vaguely believed to be the transaction in question, but no data were given from which those who might feel inclined could get at the bottom facts. We can think of only one explanation of the sale of the property as made by the board, and that is that there is some defect in the title, for the property if a good title can be obtained, is worth more than three thousand dollars and has been so valued by a number of competent judges. The title, however, is alleged to be undisputed, and therefore it devolves upon the members of the board to rise and explain in some way more satisfactory to the public, than was the thin defense made, in what for a few days past has appeared to look a great deal like an organ of the state administration. THE OREGONIAN has encouraged and upheld this administration in every effort it has made to correct the great evils which sprang up and attained such extensive proportions under Grover and Chadwick, but has given no one cause to think that it would try to conceal an act of the officials which is of as much interest and importance to the people as the one in question, because of personal regard for any members of the board.

The manner in which Grover's administration managed the school funds which went into their hands has been fully set forth in the journals and in the report of the committee appointed by the last legislature, and condemned by the honest men of all parties. This committee concluded their report by saying:

> The attention of the people and future legislatures is called to the danger of too much confidence. Men are as prone to abuse unlimited confidence as unlimited power. The consciousness of being watched is among the greatest supports to public virtue. It is one of the evils of democracy that the reckless, the mercenary, the selfishly ambitious are usually the most active, as well as the most successful aspirants for public honors; hence the necessity for vigilance. Public debts are only in small part due to legitimate expenditures. It is the policy of those who have wasted the public treasure, to resort to other means than taxation to replenish it, lest the increase of public burthens begets a scrutiny into their acts and drives them from power and place. The creation and rapid increase of the public debt is the only recourse to hide, for the time, official dishonesty. The people can always be trusted with the knowledge of the legitimate cost of government, and additional taxation, induced by honest expenditure, hurts no man's popularity. The increase of debt, except in extraordinary emergencies, is a sure indication of corrupt administration. The committee have censured the state officials with no view to injure their standing, but as a warning and an example to deter others from similar practices. The duty of exposing to public obloquy the faults and misdeeds of others, is at all times an unpleasant one, but in view of the high social position, and the public honors heretofore enjoyed by the principal parties implicated, the task has, in this instance, been unusually painful. Men must be taught that station and public honors are no shield against the consequences of their misdeeds. Instead of exempting them from censure, these circumstances should render it all the more severe. He only is safe in the public esteem who does his duty regardless of consequences; who pushes aside, when he acts for the community, his private obligations and the claims of friendship; who abjures self when he becomes the representative of the commonwealth. The converse of these must in the end bring disgrace and ruin.
> The greed that has characterized the conduct of state officers must give way to a generous public spirit, or anarchy in the end will prevail. Men will not support a government that is used as an engine of extortion for the benefit of an oligarchy of officeholders, instead of the means of protection, in the hands of the public servitors. It must be understood that there is a responsibility attached to the administration of public affairs. The idea that any man is above the law finds no place in our civil polity; statics and the laws limit the claims of individuals against the state, and guard with equal strictness the rights of the body politic and of the individuals who compose it. The public funds are alike sacred with those of individuals. He who administers the law is to equal degree with the humblest citizen, amenable to the laws; and the man who unlawfully or unjustly takes from the public purse is as much a robber as he who filches from his employer's till.

With these earnest words of exhortation to a thoroughly openhanded and honest administration of all the affairs of the state the present officials cannot expect their warmest supporters to excuse any of their short comings, and if they have done wrong in the transaction referred to they cannot expect us to keep silent. If they can explain and show that it was entirely consistent with good faith and conducted with the diligent attention to business principles which men observe in the management of their own affairs, they should do so in justice to themselves. There is opportunity, and the people have a right to know whether the stories traveling about as street reports are founded in fact or have been set afloat by malicious persons to injure the good name of the state officials. We most earnestly desire to see a candid statement of the transaction which will allay all fear that the state government is drifting back toward the old Groverian methods.

A LETTER NOT PUBLISHED

A few days ago a brief dispatch came over the wires to the effect that Tilden was preparing a letter to the country which would announce his withdrawal from the ranks of the candidates for president. The country has waited patiently for that letter, but it has not yet made its appearance. But Mr. Tilden's friends are still working for his nomination, and the old man himself is no an idle spectator of the president-making which is going on throughout the country. We find in the New York Sun of a late date the assertion, made on authority of a congressman from New York who has Mr. Tilden's closest confidence, that unless Tilden be the candidate in 1880, he will take no interest in the election, and that in that case the empire state will give 50,000 republican majority. This person asserts that the democratic party has not carried New York since 1856, except when the campaign was controlled and directed by Tilden; that every time that state has been carried by the democracy it has been carried by Tilden's brains and Tilden's money. The same authority intimates that Tilden holds Seymour and Kernan and Church responsible for the Tammany bolt, and declares that he carried the state for Seymour in 1858, and made Kernan senator, and that if Seymour becomes the candidate in 1880 he will not have Tilden's support, and will be beaten in New York. Nor will, it is declared, Tilden make any effort to carry New York or Bayard or any other candidate; but, unless Tilden be the democratic candidate in 1880, the state will pass into the hands of the republicans beyond the hope of rescue.

Upon this state of affairs, the Tribune thinks it is evident that Tilden proposes to fight his enemies vigorously; that, as John Kelly and Tammany hall were able in 1879 to deliver the state to the republicans, so in 1880 Tilden will be prepared to repeat the same operation unless the democratic party accept him as their candidate. The motto of the man of Gramercy Park is no longer "Tilden and Reform"; it is now, and will be until after the nomination, "Tilden or Defeat." It is unquestionably true that, even if the democrats united were able to carry New York in 1880, which is doubtful, they certainly could not carry it against the power and influence of Tilden. The opposition may beat Tilden in the convention, but he has the power to defeat the party at the polls, and that he will exercise that power no one who knows his pride and his vindictiveness can for a moment doubt. That Tilden can command a two-thirds vote in the democratic convention against the almost solid vote of the western states can hardly be expected, unless his threat to deliver New York to the republicans will overwhelm the loudly-proclaimed hostility of the party in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and in some of the southern states, and compel those states to accept him, and at the same time accept his battle with Tammany Hall.

Mr. Tilden occupies the vantage ground that the vote of New York is indispensable to elect any democratic candidate for president, and, when he declares that unless he is a candidate himself he and his friends will permit the state to go republican by default, the choice of the democracy is practically reduced to Tilden or nobody. The solid south is powerless against Tilden's defection, and is equally powerless with Tilden as against the defection of Tammany Hall. Altogether, the democratic prospect is not likely to brighten so long as Tilden is a candidate and refuses to support any other person who may be nominated.

A SAMPLE DISPATCH.

The Standard about a week ago published a dispatch from Washington to the effect that the "most serious" questions to come before the national republican committee, were "the proposed expulsion of Gorham for his action in the late election in California and of Scott from Oregon." We said nothing about the matter at the time not knowing that some enemy of the Oregon member might possibly have dispatched the falsehood which we knew at the time was such, to this coast. With others who read it, however, we believed that the interpolation of Mr. Scott's name was done by the Standard and that it never received such a dispatch. We are now in receipt of all the leading California papers of that date and find nothing in their columns whatever upon which the lie could have been founded. The national committee has met, transacted its business and adjourned, and no word was uttered, nor did any member seem to have a thought that anybody objected to Mr. Scott's membership. Furthermore, we learn that utmost harmony exists between the Oregon state central committee and the member upon the national committee from this state and that the members of the state committee paid no attention to the scurrilous attacks of a few cowardly sneaks who took advantage of the absence of a man from the state to manifest their imbecile hatred against him. To this element the Standard probably desired to cater when it framed the dispatch alluded to. It succeeds better in raising dates upon what it knows has happened and ought not to attempt to manufacture its news "out of whole cloth." There are but few papers in the country that will resort to such disgraceful subterfuges, for matter that it thinks will interest the few readers which journals conducted on such a plan usually have.

A writer in the Boston Journal calls up some reminiscences of Bob Toombs, while a member of the United States senate before the war; he says: Toombs was always a belligerent old cuss, and was forever in a squabble with some one. John P. Hale, of New Hampshire, the once famous anti-slavery senator, and free-soil presidential candidate in 1852, was his especial aversion, though Hale's proverbial good nature generally carried the day. During the Lecompton debate Toombs took a rattle at Stephen A. Douglas, and came out of the contest second best. The writer says that "The Little Giant never appeared to greater advantage, and as he thundered and lightened the Georgia oligarch quailed before the storm like a fishing smack when struck by a hurricane. The glittering tornado of invective which Douglas hurled at him was like that which scathed Egypt when 'fire, mingled with hail, ran along upon the ground.'"

The Springfield Republican, in an article on the demand for iron in this country, says: "The great revival in the iron business has not only exhausted the stock on hand, but has so far outrun the means of supply that the United States has suddenly become the prompt consumer of about all the ore and odds and ends of scrap iron that Europe has to spare. This iron is pouring into Baltimore so fast that the custom officials have been increased, and even now cannot dispose of it all, though they dispatch train-load after train-load night and day for Pittsburg and points further west. The duties on iron alone amounted to $80 000 in three days recently, and a railroad official says that the receipts will average 1000 tons per day, for the next fifteen months. The Baltimore Journal of Commerce goes even higher and puts next year's importations at 600,000 tons."

The appearance of the remarkably red spot on the planet Jupiter has excited much interest and discussion. It has been seen, under somewhat different conditions, in previous years, and Dr. Temple, the director of the Royal Observatory of Arcetri, near Florence, has several drawings of it made by him last year. This year, he says, the spot "is more contracted and of a redder hue, but then the northern equatorial streak is also redder than it was last year. Striking is the contrast of color between this floating red cloud and the small gray streak upon which it would appear to be moving." As the doctor fails to explain the cause of the red spot, the world is at liberty to attribute it to too much beer, and Jupiter will go on coloring his nose till he fills a drunkard's grave.

A Louisville dispatch says that in recognition of the services of Governor Luke P. Blackburn in pardoning a number of noted criminals and sporting men—among them Bob Atwood, who was serving a twenty-years' sentence in the state prison for forgery—the sporting fraternity have given over $2,000 for the purchase of a magnificent carriage for the Governor.

CITY.

LAW DEPARTMENT CREATED.—From a Salem correspondent it is learned that at a meeting of the board of trustees of the Willamette University, held at the University building last Wednesday night, J. Quinn Thornton, E. P. Boise, Rev. Charles E. Lambert (president), and C. B. Moores, were appointed a committee to report at the next meeting of the board a plan for a law department of the institution, to afford a complete course of legal education for gentlemen intended for the bar, and also a systematic but less extensive course of studies in commercial jurisprudence for those who intend to devote themselves exclusively to mercantile pursuits. It is intended, as we are informed, to embrace in its course of instruction for the bar the leading branches of the common law and of equity, admiralty, commercial, international and constitutional law, and the jurisprudence of the United States. The methods contemplated are text books and drill of the recitation room, with supplementary lectures and exercises, oral and written.

NUPTIALS.—The residence of Mrs. S. Bach-[illegible], corner Sixth and Main streets, was the scene yesterday afternoon of a joyous occasion—the union in marriage of her accomplished daughter, Miss Jennie, to Mr. J. D. [illegible]. The impressive ceremony of the [illegible] church was performed by Rev. Dr. M. [illegible]. About eighty friends were present, and congratulations over, partook of a bounteous repast. A number of appropriate letters and telegrams from absent friends were received and read. Dancing and pleasant social enjoyment followed and were kept up until midnight, when the merry party dispersed with many wishes for the future peace and happiness of the newly wedded pair.

FIRE AT MONMOUTH.—A correspondent writing from Monmouth under date of Saturday says: About 6 o'clock last night a fire broke out in what is known as the Waterhouse block and consumed the entire block of buildings, which included Dawson's store, the postoffice, McNeal's grocery store, [illegible]'s butcher shop, Powell's hardware store, a blacksmith shop and four dwellings. Most of the goods in the stores was saved in fair condition. Waterhouse's loss, [illegible]. The fire caught from a defective flue in [illegible]'s drug store.

ELECTION.—St. John Chapter No. [illegible], R. A. M., at Astoria, elected officers on [illegible] evening, as follows: W. D. Hare, high priest; P. E. Ferchen, king; E. R. [illegible], scribe; A. W. Ferguson, captain of the host; A. P. Anderson, principal sojourner; [illegible] Van Dusen, royal arch captain; [illegible] Anderson, master of third veil; L. Hart[illegible], master of second veil; A. H. Sale, master of first veil; E. R. Hawes, treasurer; A. [illegible], secretary; L. Hartwig, sentinel.

ACCIDENT.—Joseph Benke, a blacksmith, and a friend, Ed Burns, were snowballing and scuffling yesterday morning at the corner of Front and Main streets, and the ground being slippery both fell. Renke [illegible], fracturing his left leg below the knee and dislocating the ankle joint. His injuries were attended to by Dr. J. A. Chapman.

HONORARY COMMISSIONER.—Gov. Thayer has appointed L. P. McCarty, publisher of the [illegible], honorary commissioner of the board of immigration of the State of Oregon, in the City of New York, where he will shortly take up his permanent residence. The appointment will, we feel assured, prove a good one.

FINED.—Saturday Joseph Reed of Roseburg was brought up in the United States district court on a charge of cutting timber on government lands. The information was sustained and Reed fined $100. A stay of execution was granted for a time in order to allow him to return home and raise the money to pay the fine.

FOR THE PENITENTIARY.—John Layton, who was convicted at the last term of circuit court in Wasco county of larceny from a dwelling, and sentenced to the penitentiary for the term of three years, arrived Saturday evening from The Dalles in custody of Sheriff [illegible]. He will be conveyed to Salem to-day.

ACCIDENT.—Friday night Mrs. Skinner, a lady aged 65 years, sustained a simple fracture of the left hip. She went into the kitchen of her residence to procure a drink of water to allay her thirst, and slipping on a wet part of the floor, she fell with the result stated.

AN OMISSION.—By an omission of the compositor in setting up the article headed "Odd Fellows' Orphans' Home" in Saturday's issue the name of the "grand representative" was left out. It should have read: "Grand representative, A. G. Walling."

ARRESTED.—Yesterday afternoon six persons were arrested by the police on a charge of [illegible]ling. These parties were taken to the station, but deposited the required bail and were discharged. The cases will be tried before Judge Stearns.

MARINE.—The barkentine Webfoot arrived at Astoria Saturday afternoon. The [illegible] crossed out Saturday at 4 P. M. The Elvira arrived from Portland yesterday at [illegible] A. M., in tow of the Ordway.

AT THE DOCK.—The ship David Law, drawing [illegible] feet with 2400 tons of wheat, got out of place and rubbed the dock as she swung with the tide Friday at Astoria, but no damage resulted.

CIRCUIT COURT.—Judge Deady will render a decision in this court this morning in the case of United States vs. Thos. G. [illegible], and the case of Lownsdale, assignee, vs. Coli.

TO THE DALLES.—Gong Fook, the Celestial, will be sent up to The Dalles to-day in charge of an officer. He will be tried in the circuit court for Wasco county on the charge of [illegible].

BUSINESS NOTICES.

[illegible] & Co. come forward with their holiday announcement this morning. In everything from staple to fine shelf groceries, this firm takes the lead. Housekeepers should read their advertisement new to-day.

[illegible] & Co. commence this morning and will continue until Wednesday evening, a grand sale of [illegible]. Everyone is respectfully invited to attend this sale. For their comfort a heating stove has been put up in the store and everything will be made as pleasant as possible.

Pfunder, whose place of business is at the corner of First and Ash streets, has on exhibition and sale a very large and handsome stock of elegant French importations in the holiday line. A more tempting and elegant display of goods cannot be found at any place in the city. He keeps everything useful and ornamental. If you wish to purchase a Christmas present for your family, wife, or sweetheart, call and see Pfunder's stock. He can suit the most fastidious taste, and can accommodate you as to price. Give him an early call. You will not depart without buying something.

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT.

The scholars and teachers attached to the Sunday school of the First Baptist Church will hold a Christmas entertainment on Friday evening in the Sunday school room of the church, for which the following programme of exercises has been prepared:

[illegible] entertainment at Y. M. C. A. Hall, [illegible].

Recollect Hirstel's when out buying holiday goods. Largest stock of toys, etc. Astonishingly low prices at this house.

If you want to treat your friend to a real good cigar with Havana fillers, it would pay you to walk into F. Gerscheland's "White Star" cigar manufactory, 25½ North Front street, between B and C streets, and get a box at manufacturer's price.

BRIEF NOTES.

Fine coasting.

Jingle, Jingle.

Thus we glide.

These be holiday times.

The steamer has arrived.

Clean off your sidewalks.

"Oh, the sn—" Police, police.

No fire alarms for three days.

The little folks are on the qui vive.

This year is almost [illegible] ending.

Lines have been prostrated for two days.

A general advance on Turkey will be made about Wednesday.

"Christmas Revels" at New Market theater on Wednesday night.

The "saucer shell" is the name of the latest hat for young ladies. [illegible] covers the lasses.

The careful girl begins to tell her gentlemen callers what so-and-so gave her last Christmas.

Prof. W. S. James leaves for Dallas in a few days, to take charge of the commercial department of the La Creole Institute.

Dried lemon peel and sugar and nutmeg can be taken in cold water, and will be found very bracing. However, T and J are more fashionable.

After an examination of the prosecuting witness, Mrs. Nathan, the case of Yam [illegible], accused of larceny, was continued till to-day in the police court.

J. B. Congle, High Grand Priest and R. P. Earhart, Grand Master of Masons of Oregon, have gone to McMinnville to install the officers of Sterling Chapter, No. 16, Royal Arch Masons, Friday evening.

Song of the hour:

Oh! swift we go o'er the fleecy snow,
As footprints sparkle round,
When hoofs keep time
To the music chime,
As merrily on we bound.

A man hugs his sweetheart with all the fervor of passionate devotion, he hugs his sister with manly and respectful and earnest affection, he hugs his wife with the deepest, strongest and purest love of his nature, but when he hugs the inanimate and irresponsive cigar store Indian—ah, there is friendship, confidence, and an appealing yearning for support and protection in his clinging embrace.

A WISE PRECAUTION.

Horses to be Used in Drawing Engines to and from Fires During the Present Weather.

While the snow lies to its present depth, it will be a most difficult task to get the steam fire engines out, in the event of a fire. The snow is deep, and obstructions of various kinds are hidden from view, so that a "run" would be certain to result in more or less damage to the engines. Besides, it would be next to impossible to reach the scene of the fire without much delay and thus involve great loss of property. In view of this difficulty and the great interests directly affected, Chief Engineer Morgan has, with the consent and authority of the committee on fire and water, made arrangements by which a span of horses will be employed in drawing each of the engines to and from fires. A span of powerful horses are kept stabled in close proximity to the several engine houses ready, at a moment's notice, to be hitched on to the "masheen."

Yesterday all preliminaries were consummated, and at the first tap of the big bell the engines will be drawn by horses instead of the "boys." The iron tongues have been removed from the engines and the poles, suitable for horses, attached. Everything has been so arranged that only a few moments delay will occur between the alarm and the time the engines get out on the streets. This is certainly a wise and timely precaution on the part of the committee on fire and water and Chief Engineer Morgan.

To still further provide against contingencies, the chief engineer had several men to visit every fire cistern in the city yesterday, scrape the snow from the covers and loosen the traps so that they could not freeze fast. He also examined each cistern to ascertain if the supply of water was all right.

THE MERRY SLEIGH BELLS.

Wife—Dear John, the merry sleigh bells this evening remind me of our absent daughters. I hope they are having a jolly time, and as they will be expecting some reminder from the old folks at home, suppose you go to 149 Front street, and order two of those superb New Wilson Sewing Machines of Mr. John B. Garrison; it is now over a year since you bought mine, and it has been such a comfort to me—never out of order once. I think it sews faster and better than any other I ever saw.

John—Well, that is just what I was thinking about. Mary and Jane shall both have a new machine before the end of the week. Ours has been a real blessing, and I shall recommend the New Wilson Sewing Machine to all our neighbors and friends.

WINTER'S OPENING ROAR.

A BOUNTIFUL DISH OF THE BEAUTIFUL SNOW.

The editorial rooms of THE OREGONIAN had just been unlocked yesterday morning, and the office fire started, when the "oldest inhabitant," wearing in addition to his customary outfit, a fur cap, a large comforter carefully wrapped around his ears, an ulster, a pair of woolen leggings, Arctic overshoes, and thick woolen gloves, entered and seated himself on the woodbox. He shook the snow from his cap on the brightly polished stove, drew off his scarf and threw it on the news editor's table, stamped his feet to loosen the adhering snow from a pair of boots on the new body Brussels carpet and addressing himself to a reporter said: "I came to tell you about the heavy snow of 1862——" That is as far as he got. His cap and scarf were thrown to him from the same window.

Portlanders were surprised yesterday morning upon arising to find that snow had fallen to the depth of eight inches, and that the metropolis of the northwest had for her holiday attire the appropriate dress. Church goers had to open the path to their favorite places of worship, and found walking no little difficulty. The average small boy began snowballing before breakfast, and the owners of every vehicle on runners got them in order. The day was bright and seemed to be enjoyed by every one. In the afternoon the streets were full of sleighs and the jingle of the bells kept up a merry chorus to the sparkling glee of the pleasure seekers. There were the usual ridiculous falls, and a few broken windows, the result of carelessly thrown snow balls. Much anxiety was expressed by travelers bound up the river, and the O. S. N. Co's office was besieged during office hours by anxious visitors, eager for news concerning the weather, and the probabilities of getting to the Dalles.

About 10 o'clock yesterday morning a crowd of hoodlums—there is no more moderate name by which they can be truthfully called—stationed themselves near the corner of Second and Alder streets, and whenever a Chinaman made his appearance, literally deluged him with snow. They kept up this amusement for nearly an hour, when, by a preconcerted movement, about one hundred Chinamen, each bearing a short board covered with snow, emerged from the alley next door to the Joss house, made a brilliant charge on their cowardly superiors and put them to flight. The hoodlums retreated in bad order, much dismayed, and for the remainder of the day left the celestials severely alone.

During the afternoon a line of roughs numbering from one to two hundred, and ranging from ten-year old boys to middle aged—we almost said men, males, occupied stations along the sidewalks on either side of First street from Washington to Morrison and pelted every sleigh that passed, except occasionally such as contained ladies. The hoodlums aimed at the heads of the occupants of the sleighs and with a few well directed snowballs usually succeeded in blinding the drivers and it is remarkable that there were no runaways.

Bridget Gallagher, with two other women and a driver, were subject at four separate times to particularly severe peltings. As the sleigh drove past for the fourth time Bridget drew a bulldog revolver at the corner of Washington, and with several "big, big D's"—and loud ones, too—snapped at the crowd. Fortunately the revolver missed fire. After the sleigh had run the gauntlet of snowballers and while passing the Occidental hotel, Bridget fired, pointing the weapon to the ground. The shot created much excitement, the crowd rushing up street, expecting to see some one carried home on a shutter.

Several gentlemen were roughly assaulted and unmercifully, and every one engaged in these cowardly assaults should be arrested, and, if not able to pay a fine, be made to join the gang and clear the streets of snow. Boys and men who like such enjoyment should have the liberty to throw snow balls at each other to their hearts' content, but the action of the mob on First street was cowardly and guerilla-like, inasmuch as the objects of their attack had no defense and no means of retaliation, and the police authorities were derelict in their duties in not ordering the crowd to desist, and then, if the order was disobeyed, in not arresting every offender.

GROWING COLDER UP THE RIVER.

The Dalles—Snowing hard; about 4 or 5 inches of snow fell this morning; the river is full of slush ice; boats are all going into winter quarters; thermometer 20; no wind; six inches of snow.

Cascades—Snowing; snow 14 inches deep; fell from 2 A. M. to 7 A. M.; there are about 18 inches of snow now on the ground.

Wallula—Cloudy; river fell 5 inches during past 24 hours; wind strong from the north; heavy snow falling and drifting; is from 6 to 8 inches on the level, should think; river full of solid looking ice; ice is just moving and if it keeps this cold to-day will block before night; I think the ice is frozen solid 150 to 200 feet from shore; thermometer 10.

Umatilla—Thermometer 13; cloudy; heavy wind from the north; river full of running ice; ice formed along shore about 60 feet out in the river and gradually widening by wind blowing drifting ice to this side; very little snow on the ground, except in drifts; not snowing now.

Scott's—Cloudy; snowing hard; thermometer, 16°; strong east wind; about five inches new snow this morning; about seven inches on the ground now.

LATER.

The following dispatches were received at 6 P. M.:

Umatilla—Thermometer, 18°; cloudy; snowed a little this afternoon; about three inches now; river full of running ice; no wind.

Celilo—Clear; thermometer, 20°, wind down stream.

Wallula—Cloudy; snowing; thermometer, 16°; no wind; river fell two inches to-day; river full of floating ice; it formed solid 60 feet further from the shore to-day into the river; about 200 feet of ice solid now along the shore.

River Steamer Movements.

The steamers Wide West and S. G. Reed have both been temporarily laid up at the boneyard. The steamer Emma Hayward will take the place of the Wide West on the Portland Cascades route, and the Dixie Thompson will go on the Astoria route for the present.

The Hayward will leave here this morning for the Cascades with freight, passengers, mails and express matter. If possible the steamer will reach the Cascades.

The steamer Idaho will leave The Dalles this morning for the Upper Cascades. The river at The Dalles is filled with floating ice, and it is quite probable that there will be a gorge at Crate's Point, about six miles below that place, before the steamer can get down.

All the mails and express matter will be carried by the steamers as long as they can make the connections.

The boat will leave for Astoria this morning at the usual time.

It was reported last night that the O. S. N. Co. had refused to sell tickets for points either up or down the river. This was not the case, however. Tickets will be sold for The Dalles and Astoria and intermediate points as long as boats can run. Purchasers will, of course, take tickets at their own risk.

The several steamers which ply on the upper Willamette will leave this city at the usual time this morning. However, it is expected that none of them will be able to ascend higher than the mouth of the Yamhill river, as the Willamette will probably be frozen from shore to shore at that point.

LOW TEMPERATURES SINCE 1873.

The following is the official record of the coldest days since 1873, and is kindly furnished by R. R. Herman, in charge of the signal service office:

1873—Dec. 12th, 17°.
1874—Jan. 22d, 26°.
1875—Jan. 13th; at 4 P. M. heavy wind, attaining velocity of thirty miles an hour; navigation on the Columbia and Willamette entirely closed by ice; 14 to 3°. This is the lowest temperature on record in the office.
1876—Jan. 22d, 20°.
1877—Feb. 10th, 25°.
1878—Jan. 2d, 18°.

Last night at 10:15 the thermometer stood at 18°, and was falling. In consequence of the lines being down we are again without the weather indications from Washington. The rising barometer at 8 P. M. and the cold and partially clear weather until midnight, are favorable to continued cold without snow.

Monastes, the crockery man, is the one who will sell you holiday presents cheaper than any one else in the city. He does not make up flaming advertisements for the reason that he does not charge you any profit for what you buy. You can get everything in the line of crockery, glassware and holiday goods of him at cost, as he is closing out business at No. 169 First street, between Morrison and Yamhill.

Ladies' hairdresser, Miss Cecelia Blackwell, 110 Morrison, between Fourth and Fifth.

For the Kidney and Bladder, Damiana Bitters. Fleckenstein & Mayer are sole agents.

Fred, Ernst and James McCafferty, now conduct the Occidental Hotel Restaurant. Call on them.

The DAVIS SEWING MACHINE is the best sewing machine made. McKercher & Thompson, agents, 105 First street.

Masquerade suits cheaper than ever at Mrs. Chas. Richmond's, corner First and Yamhill, Sts. Portland. Send stamp for price list.

Having satisfied hundreds of new customers that his photo work pleases them, Davidson will resume his old prices on New Year's day. Until then cards $2 50 doz., cabinets $4.

MISS B. DUBOIS
TEACHER OF VOCAL MUSIC,
213 Fourth St. Portland.

FOUND AT LAST.

Not Charlie Ross, but a remedy for the backache and all kidney troubles in the Oregon Kidney Tea. This wonderful discovery has been before the public for a short time only, but in that time has achieved a marvelous fame. DEDICATION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH EAST PORTLAND.

The new Congregational Church in Holladay's Addition, East Portland, was dedicated on yesterday, Forefathers' Day. Notwithstanding the heavy fall of snow, rendering traveling difficult, a fair audience assembled at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The church building just finished is very neat and comfortable. It is well seated, lighted and heated, and for the occasion was handsomely decorated with wreaths and evergreens.

The excellent choir of the Portland Congregational Church, led by Prof. E. [illegible], was present and contributed largely to the interest of the occasion. Chaplain Stubbs and Rev. J. A. Cruzan, who were to have been present and participated in the exercises, were prevented from attending, the latter on account of a severe cold.

The choir opened by voluntary anthem, followed by Rev. E. P. Baker, in reading of Scripture and prayer.

The Freedom of heaven set up on earth is spiritual but real, established by Christian faith, God's true to [illegible].

The sermon was logical, thoughtful and earnest, and was listened to with marked attention throughout.

Another beautiful anthem was rendered by the choir. Dr. Atkinson made a brief address of welcome to all, especially to Rev. E. P. Baker who comes from California to labor in the church and Plymouth in North Portland. Following this was an historical sketch of this organization by the doctor, the substance of which is as follows:

The organization of this church occurred May 15th 1871, in the school house in district No. 21, with 8 members—3 males and 5 females—6 of whom are still members. It was the result of the missionary work of the First Congregational church in Portland, during the pastorate of Rev. G. H. Atkinson, and six of its members who came from that church.

Incorporation, June 5th 1871, J. M. M[illegible], J. H. McMillen, H. K. Abrams, trustees and incorporators.

Property, a warrantee deed of lots 5 and 6 in block 80, for the church, given by the proprietor, Ben Holladay, July 1st, 1871.

Rev. W. R. Joyslin was pastor for about two years. By his zeal and energy the church building enterprise was begun and the brick basement was erected, on a plan for an audience room or church as a superstructure.

His report to the trustees, October 31st, 1872, is as follows: W. R. Joyslin in account with East Portland Congregational Church, for building, Dr.:

To subscriptions collected	$1001 30
To fund from festival	101 50
Total	$1102 80
Credit—By expenditures on basement	1093 58
Balance	$ 9 22
Additional expenses for buttresses, etc.	230 50
Interest on loan	66 92
	$ 306 42
1875. Cash received on former subscriptions and festival	306 42

As per account of Dea. J. P. Sheffield:

1876. Cash in bank	$ 10 00
1877. School room fitted up by loan of seats from First Congregational church, and by part gift of chairs from Dea. J. Shindler.
1878. Organ purchased by subscription and by Sabbath congregational collections	$ 140 60

Services held in the old school house by permission of the directors and after its sale by the proprietor's agent during the last seven years. First, every Sabbath by W. R. Joyslin. For eight years monthly or bi-monthly, by Rev. G. H. Atkinson, missionary pastor, assisted by Dea. J. P. Sheffield and others. For over a year quite regularly Chaplain Stubbs has kindly given his services once or twice a month, whenever he could be away from his ship work.

In 1878, at a church meeting held at the house of Colonel J. K. Laing, it was voted, after counsel and prayer, to attempt to complete the church building, and G. H. Atkinson chosen chairman of the building committee. Estimates were received from builders of a superstruction on the first plan. It was found that $3000 would hardly finish an audience room above, leaving the basement unfinished. This was deemed impossible for us and unwise in itself.

C. B. Talbot, Esq., architect, suggested the present plan to raise and cover the basement walls for an audience room, drew an outline and specifications and attended to the contracts and details of erection free of cost to us. G. W. Weidler gave half the lumber, except shingles and finishing. It was commenced about fourteen months ago with $10 in the treasury. The account is as follows:

G. H. Atkinson in account with East Portland Congregational Church, Dr.,

To subscriptions and materials received	$1228 34
To loan received	500 00
	$1728 34
Cr.
By church completion, insurance and furnishings	$1715 66
Interest ($37 50) and 3 yrs insurance ($21)	58 50
	$1774 16
Cost of basement as above	1400 00
Whole cost to date	$3174 16
December 20, 1879.
Outstanding debts	$ 169 82
Note	500 00
	$696 82
Assets or credits:
Subscriptions not collected	$ 94 00
Pilgrim lot given by Atkinson & Wakefield, which a friend will take at $100 if no one bids more	100 00
Balance grant from 1st Cong'l church	55 00
Conditional grant from Cong'l Union	210 00
	$459 00
Balance needed to pay all debts and secure grant from the Congregational Union	$ 237 82

A collection was then taken, amounting to some thing over $100, to apply on the indebtedness of about $257.

The dedicatory prayer was then offered by Dr. Atkinson.

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Baker, and the Doxology sung by the whole congregation.

This new church starts under very favorable auspices, and its people may well be proud of their efforts thus far.

THE DEATH-RATE OF

Our country is getting to be fearfully alarming, the average of life being lessened every year, without any reasonable cause, death resulting generally from the most insignificant origin. At this season of the year especially a cold is such a common thing that in the hurry of every day life we are apt to overlook the dangers attending it, and often find too late that a Fever or Lung trouble has set in. Thousands lose their lives in this way every winter, while had Boschee's German Syrup been taken a cure would have resulted and a large bill from a doctor been avoided. For all diseases of the Throat and Lungs Boschee's German Syrup has proven itself to be the greatest discovery of its kind in medicine. Every Druggist in this country will tell you of its wonderful effect. Over 950,000 bottles sold last year, without a single failure known.

Forewarned Forearmed.

Physicians and invalids use with confidence The Kaiser Celebrated German Elixir for Consumption and throat and lung diseases. It is rich in the medical properties of tar, wild cherry etc. Is rendered perfectly harmless to the youngest child. This would have proved an Angel of Mercy in the household of those unhappy parents at Vallejo, Dixon, Beaver, Utah and numerous other places, whose children were slaughtered by quack medicine recommended by its owner to cure croup, possessing no properties calculated to cure it, but instead a deadly drug which has slain its thousands. Be sure you get only German Elixir. The genuine bears the Prussian coat of arms and the fac-simile signature of Dr. Kaiser. Samples at all drug stores. Large size 75 cents.

SUICIDE.

A distinguished Scientist once said: "No man with a strong, healthy stomach ever committed suicide, yet many suffer the torments of the damned with dyspepsia when a single bottle of DR. MINTIE'S ENGLISH DANDELION LIVER AND DYSPEPSIA PILLS will give relief, and, if persisted in, cure the worst case of this distressing trouble. This pill cures torpid liver, biliousness, sallow complexion, foul breath, sick headache, heartburn, pain in side and back, removes pimples from the face, regulates the bowels, is sugar-coated and guaranteed purely vegetable. It acts directly on the coating of the stomach and on the liver; is suited to any climate, wet or dry weather. Beware of imitations; genuine has cut of Fontou outside wrapper. Price, 50 cents. Sold by all druggists. Hodge, Davis & Co., Portland, wholesale agents.

How to Save Money.

Instead of going to a doctor, if you have Bright's Disease, Diabetes, pain in back and loins, smarting, inflammation, calculi, brick-dust deposit, or any trouble of the kidneys or bladder, buy a bottle of DR. MINTIE'S NEPHRETICUM, the great Buchu Compound. It is the best prescription ever compounded for these troubles. Abrams & Carroll, Wholesale Druggists, say: "We regard Nephreticum as the best Kidney and Bladder Remedy in the market." Woodward, druggist, Portland, Oregon, says: "Everybody speaks highly of it." Childs, druggist, Portland, says: "Sold lots of it; it always does the work." Many have been cured of obstinate kidney complaints after the doctors gave them up. Sold by all druggists. Price $1 25. Hodge, Davis & Co., Portland, Wholesale Agents.

Sir Astley Cooper's Vital Restorative.

The great English remedy—has made more cures of Nervous Debility, Seminal Weakness, Lost Manhood, nocturnal emissions, lassitude, inability for mental labor, despondency, and such diseases as are induced by youthful follies and excesses, than all other medicines combined.

It is not a stimulant nor excitant, is perfectly safe to take, is not a quack nostrum, and produces results that are wonderful.

Price, $3 a bottle. Four times the quantity, $10. Buy a bottle. It will not disappoint you. Hodge, Davis & Co., wholesale agents.

MAUD HESKETH

"If any one but you had told me this I would not have believed a word of it," said Percy Herbert to his friend Harry Liston as they smoked their cigars outside the library window of the house they were staying at. "It seems perfectly incredible that a girl like Maud Hesketh could be what you describe her."

"It is a fact, nevertheless, Percy; she is a complete fortune hunter, and far from disguising the fact, rather boasts of it than otherwise. It is not much more than a month since I saw her, and then she certainly did not hesitate to speak her sentiments on the subject. I am glad I have arrived in time, old fellow, as I verily believe you are on the eve of falling in love with her."

"I do love her," said his friend slowly and with a sigh, "and I was vain and foolish enough to think she cared something for me. However, the charm is now broken, for if there is one thing I have a contempt for more than another it is a mercenary woman. The woman I marry must marry me for myself alone and not for what I possess."

The above conversation was overheard by Maud Hesketh herself, who had retired to the library for an hour or two's quiet reading, and who, hearing her name uttered by Percy Herbert, in her curiosity to hear what he had to say about her, crept to the open window, where, screened from observation by the heavy curtains, she listened eagerly to all that was said. Never was the old adage—listeners hear no good of themselves—so thoroughly verified as in this instance, and overwhelmed with shame and dismay, she fled to her own room, where, locking her door, she gave way to a passionate burst of tears, none the less bitter for knowledge that the accusation brought against her was a true one, for in a thoughtless mood she had uttered the words which were now to part her from the man she loved better than life.

Maud Hesketh was the eldest of a large family as poor as they were proud, for until the last two or three years their father had been a man of large landed property, but owing to the loss of a chancery suit was completely ruined—nothing remaining of his great wealth but a few thousands. The crash had been sudden and most unexpected, for not only themselves but all their friends had regarded the winning of the suit as certain, and great indeed had been the consternation when their loss became known. The old home was given up and they retired to a secluded country town where, unknown and unsought, except by a few, they could live quietly and cheaply. It was a great and sad change for all, but for Maud especially, who, not having been long introduced and having always been made much of, not only for her beauty and brightness, but also for her supposed wealth, the sudden reverse of fortune was almost more than she could bear, and she had been often heard to say that never would she marry any man who could not restore to her all the luxuries and pleasures she had lost. But, unfortunately, she had made that remark to Mr Liston, an utter stranger to her, who, while staying with a lady friend in the neighborhood, had come with her to call on the Heskeths and who, hearing a young girl make such a remark, and not knowing the circumstances of the case, had very naturally drawn his own conclusions.

One of Maud's greatest friends was an old companion, who was now married, and it was at her house that she met Percy Herbert, a favorite cousin of Mrs. Carlyon's who was very anxious to bring about a match between the two.

Mr. Herbert was possessed of considerable wealth, and was considered a great catch, so that when Maud first arrived she congratulated herself upon her good luck, and endeavored to be as fascinating as possible, but before many weeks had passed over her head she made two discoveries—first, that her heart was irretrievably gone, and secondly, that money had nothing to do with it, for it was the man himself she was in love with, so that it was doubly galling to her to hear her former mercenary views brought to light, and to feel that not only had she forfeited Percy Herbert's love, but his respect also.

"Oh, what must he think of me? How he must despise me?" said the wretched girl, and, burying her face in her hands, she thought long and earnestly as to the best way of proving the falsity of Harry Liston's opinion.

"I know what I will do," she exclaimed, "I will play Mr Liston off against him, and let him see that I can flirt with a poor man as well as a rich one."

So, removing all traces of tears, she dressed herself for dinner with unusual care. Never were tables so completely turned on any one as they were on poor Percy Herbert that evening, for, ever since his friend had opened his eyes to Maud's apparent deceit, he had been wondering how he could best give her to understand that she need not, for the future, shower any of her fascinations upon him, and now, without giving him one opportunity of snubbing her, she entirely ignored his presence, and devoted herself to his friend, who was as much astonished at the aspect of affairs as Percy himself.

This went on for days, till Percy, who in spite of all, loved her devotedly, was driven almost wild with jealousy, and openly accused his friend of having purposely deceived him in regard to her fortune-hunting propensities, and of making up the story to further his own ends.

Meanwhile Mrs Carlyon regarded with dismay the evident failure of her darling project, and, moreover, feeling very sore that Maud's victim should be her favorite cousin, determined to take the girl to task, so one night, on returning to their several rooms, she followed Maud into hers, and shutting the door, placed her hand on the girl's shoulder, and looked earnestly into her face.

"Maud, what is the reason of your behavior to Percy? Why are you so changed toward him? I did hope that you and he were learning to love each other, but since Harry Liston came you have scarcely noticed him."

"Perhaps I prefer Mr. Liston to your cousin, I suppose there's no harm in my doing so?" said Maud, in a half defiant tone, and longing to escape from the searching eyes bent upon her.

"Harm? No, certainly, there's no harm in your doing so, but I must confess I don't understand your choice; for, although Percy is my own cousin, I must say he is infinitely superior in every respect to Mr Liston. Beside, Percy has a handsome fortune, while the other has not a penny to bless himself with."

"And so you, with all the rest of the world, think I am incapable of a disinterested affection. I thank you for your good opinion of me, Mary;" and with flashing eyes and burning cheeks she turned away.

"I don't understand you, Maud," said her friend, with a sigh, "but it is very evident that my interference only angers you, so I will say good night, but I sincerely wish Harry Liston was at the bottom of the sea."

When quite certain that she was alone, Maud's over-wrought feelings gave way. Very bravely had she acted her part, but if she had succeeded in making Percy miserable, ten thousand more times wretched was she herself. Only one little bit of consolation was there for her throughout it all, and that was that all her flirting with Harry Liston was doing him no harm, for, though meeting her more than half way, she saw that beyond the flirtation there was no deeper feeling in the matter. Still, how was it all to end? Her visit was fast drawing to a close and the farewell ball, which Mrs Carlyon was to give in her honor, was to come off the next night.

Maud and her hostess were lingering over their five o'clock tea, after superintending the last finishing touches to the ball room, when the door opened, and Percy Herbert entered the room looking very pale and with an open letter in his hand.

"Good gracious, Percy! what is the matter?" exclaimed his cousin. "You are as white as a sheet."

For answer he placed the letter on her knee.

Eagerly she took it up, but when she had read a few lines she let it fall from her hands, and turning to her cousin with a face almost as white as his own she said in an agitated voice:

"Oh Percy, it cannot surely be true—the S—— bank gone? Why that is the one nearly all your money is in."

"It is," he replied, "so according to the letter I am a ruined man."

"Oh no, no! it cannot be as bad as that; there may be something saved. Oh, Percy, if not it would be too dreadful," and the good hearted little woman's eyes filled with tears. "But you will not leave us to-night? it is too late for you to do anything this evening."

"No; as you say it is too late to do anything now, but I must leave by the [illegible] to-morrow morning. So Maud [illegible] all this quiet for to-night, you know," he said with a poor attempt at a smile. "I [illegible] get any partners if [illegible] known I [illegible] penniless," and [illegible] looked toward Maud, but her [illegible]—she had flown.

* * * *

Maud had [illegible] to her room [illegible] utterly bewildered at the news she had just heard, and [illegible] deeply grieved at Percy's misfortune; still she [illegible] happier than she had [illegible]

Harry [illegible] the [illegible] had [illegible] to Percy [illegible] Maud [illegible] had [illegible] her to be.

As she stood in her ball dress a few hours late, a pleased smile passed over her face as she looked at herself in the glass. Her dress—a present from Mrs Carlyon—was perfect, and very lovely did Maud look in it.

"I wonder if he will like it," she murmured, and if she could only have seen the expression on his face as she entered the room she would not have had many doubts on the subject. Maud had no lack of partners, for she was quite the belle of the ball, but [illegible] was beginning to feel utterly weary and sick of the whole thing when a familiar voice asked her for the next dance.

"[illegible] have it with pleasure, Mr Herbert," she said, turning to him with a bright smile. But before she had time [illegible] her partner whirled her away. The first few bars of the next dance [illegible] hardly begun before Percy Herbert came [illegible] her.

"I thought you did not intend [illegible] dance to-night," she said, as they waltzed [illegible]

"[illegible] care to dance [illegible] me [illegible] ever [illegible] past."

"Perhaps I have had reasons for not doing so, but [illegible] you how very sorry I am [illegible] heard this afternoon. It [illegible]"

"Yes [illegible] but thank heaven [illegible] old and I have a way [illegible] for a life of adventure, so if the worst is realized [illegible] try my fortune in a new country. I suppose we shall soon have [illegible] Hesketh?" he said, after a slight pause.

"Congratulate me! What do you mean? I am not engaged, nor am I likely to be."

"You astonish me. I thought [illegible] was to be the happy man."

"Mr Liston is nothing to me, nor ever will be," she said hurriedly.

"Oh! I had forgotten he was a poor wretch like myself now, so I suppose that's the reason."

"Mr Herbert, why do you speak to me like this? What have I done that you should think that I only care for a man for what he possesses? If I loved him poverty would be no drawback. It is unkind of you to speak as you do." And poor Maud, with beating heart and varying color, looked very much like breaking down. Utterly amazed at her words, and thinking his ears had deceived him, he looked eagerly at her. Could this be the girl his friend had warned him against?

"Maud, do you mean what you say? Would you really marry a poor man?" he said, passionately, as he clasped the girl's hands in his. "Answer me, child. Why have you treated me so badly the last month? We were good friends enough before Liston came."

Looking into his eyes, and seeing all the love that beamed there, Maud told him all—that she had overheard the conversation between him and Harry Liston and its result.

"So," said Percy, "but for the loss of my fortune I never should have won my wife. Good comes out of evil after all."

"But I may be only an incumbrance to you while you are poor," whispered happy Maud. "Don't you think we should wait until you are better in circumstances?"

"Wait! No thank you, no more waiting for me; a second Harry Liston might appear, and what should I do then? No, as soon as my affairs are settled I shall claim you," and taking the girl in his arms, "it won't be my fault, my darling, if you ever regret becoming Percy Herbert's wife."

THE A AND W R R

Howell Prairie Ogn, Dec 19 1879

To the Editor of the Oregonian

In response to an official communication from Hon J Q A Bowlby, vice president of the Astoria and Winnemucca Railroad Company, asking of me full and true information concerning the passage across the Cascade mountains via the Mount Jefferson pass, for the construction of a railroad and also of the country beyond that pass to the mouth of the Owyhee at old Fort Boise, I beg leave to reply to that request through the columns of The Oregonian. The question of building a railroad from Astoria via Forest Grove, Mount Jefferson pass, Prineville, and through the large prairie country of 150 miles to Owyhee, is attracting public attention. Lines of railroads are made or now under construction in the northern parts of Eastern Oregon and in Washington territory. The Willamette valley is also pretty well supplied with railroads and navigation. But the route to which I would respectfully call public attention is of great need as piercing a large productive country greatly isolated and having no railroad or navigable streams for outbound trade and commerce.

This is the large country in Wasco, Grant and Baker counties, lying between the Mount Jefferson pass and old Fort Boise. It seems that a good route has been found for a railroad from Astoria to Forest Grove by Colonel Talcott. That section of country has vast resources of timber, soil, coal and water, and is capable of sustaining a large population.

But this is only the starting portion of the great trans-continental railroad from Astoria towards the Atlantic states. Its outlook from Forest Grove is the great question now at issue.

Two lines are proposed. One is to pass to Portland, cross the Willamette river there, and then pass to the Clackamas river and diverge at Oregon City, and pass Upper Molalla, Rock creek, Butte creek, Abiqua, Silver creek and Mill creek settlements to Stayton on the North Santiam. This route would pass along the line of foothills to the east all the way. This would accommodate a large part of the Willamette valley settlements that are remote from railroads or navigation.

The other route proposed would pass from Forest Grove to Lafayette, and thence through Spring valley via Lincoln, and up the Willamette to a proper crossing at Salem. This too would be a good route. From Salem to Stayton it would pass through a good farming country, not yet pierced by any railroad. At this point a most eligible route can be had on the road on or near the wagon road route to the summit. There is an easy grade from this point to the Mount Jefferson Pass. The name of this pass has been known locally as the Minto Pass. But it must henceforth assume a prominent geographical position on this great northwest coast. Mount Jefferson rears its majestic apex to the altitude of perpetual snow and stands forth boldly on this summit pass. It will remain in all its majesty and prominence while time shall endure, while the name of any man who may have found or may have surveyed this pass will pass away in the great oblivion of bygone ages.

The altitude of this Mount Jefferson pass, as we will henceforth call it, is only 3500 feet above the sea level. The snow line is only five miles and at its mean depth is four feet. The country to the right and left of the road is good for settlements, mining and stock raising. But its great wealth consists in the finest body of white pine, cedar, larch and firs in the known world. And the water power from this great water shed here is almost endless for manufacturing purposes. On Butte creek and Abiqua are vast mines of superior stone coal and cement lime rock along the line. Vast bodies of valuable timber skirt this line of road all along its length from Oregon City. This line of road will accommodate a large district of country that is urgent for railroad facilities to market at Portland and Astoria. And the route by Salem does the same on a smaller scale.

It is evident that the line of road from Astoria to Mount Jefferson pass will open up for active commerce east and west the finest and best bodies of timber on the coast. And the great deposits of valuable stone coal on this route will add to our commerce and wealth hundreds of thousands of dollars. We have coal at home; why buy foreign coal? But the great question with us is the feasibility and benefit to the railroad company and the public at large of the continuance of our railroad from the Mount Jefferson pass to the Owyhee. This route would pierce a large and good country through Wasco, Grant and Baker counties, but little known except to miners and stock raisers from its great [illegible] from our marts of trade. [illegible] an easy grade from the summit to [illegible] and then [illegible] passing on nearly [illegible] congress. Upon the proper course pursued in these matters depends to a great extent the welfare of millions of people henceforth. In the spirit of liberality, sound policy and enlightened statesmanship we should act in these important matters.
